6	Robert Bosch Stiftung	http://www.bosch-stiftung.de/content/language2/html/index.asp	Germany, Stuttgart	The Robert Bosch Stiftung is not only an operating foundation that pursues its goals by programs of its own, but also a funding foundation that enables others to develop and implement projects and initiatives that meet social needs in Germany and abroad. As a funding foundation, we fund projects that either supplement our existing programs, continue them in an innovative way, or contribute significantly to realizing our objectives in the program area concerned.	Robert Bosch stiftung	Health, Education, Society and Culture	Germany and Abroad	Health: We engage in projects to support the health and social professions in the countries of Central and Eastern Europe and support the development of regional centers in the health, social and education sectors. Another key aim of the foundation is to support the qualification of young people and experts in the nursing and health professions. Education: We contribute to improving the quality of schools and teaching methods, reforming the training of early childhood educators, and supporting talented young people from migrant backgrounds. Society: Social and demographic change as well as migration and integration pose challenges to the sustainability of our society and its institutions. Culture: European culture established big shared traditions and epochs across borders and over many centuries. We are convinced that artistic cooperation between people from different cultural and language backgrounds in Germany and Europe is an important tool for improving mutual understanding.			you first have to make an inquiry and then after getting an ok, you have to make a grant request

57	The Rothschild Foundation Europe	http://www.rothschildfoundation.eu/	England, London	The Rothschild family has a long tradition of philanthropy, starting with Mayer Amschel Rothschild (1744-1812) and his five sons. From the very beginning their philanthropy was concerned with ensuring equal opportunities for disadvantaged groups across Europe. Other areas of support have included health care, housing and education. Members of the family have sought to advance civil rights and to bridge cultural rifts within society. Early initiatives, such as the design and establishment of public housing projects, have provided models for innovative philanthropy and best practices, helping to shape public policy. Today, a number of Rothschild family foundations continue to operate in a wide range of fields, including medical science, housing, education, academic excellence and social development. 73	The Netherlands Ministry of Foreign Affairs	http://www.netherlands-embassy.com.ua/matra_informatie.html	The Netherlands	Since the early 1990s, the Dutch Ministry of Foreign Affairs has had the 'Matra programme', which supports social transformation in Central and Eastern Europe. Matra supports fifteen different countries, including Ukraine and starting 2006 Moldova, in their transformation from totalitarian States into modern, democratic nations – multiform countries built on a constitutional foundation, where citizens may assume responsibility for shaping the society in which they live.	The Matra Kap (Social Transformation) Programme	The Matra (Social Transformation) Programme, launched by the Netherlands Ministry of Foreign Affairs in 1994, aims to support the transition process in Central and Eastern Europe, including Ukraine and Moldova, toward pluralistic, democratic and constitutional states. Social transformation means the process of change in the state, its institutions and non-governmental organisations (and their interrelations) towards a democratic society where individuals are able to assume responsibility for shaping their own living environment. It supports activities that stimulate the process of change in the state, its institutions, civil society organisations and relations among them.	Ukraine and Moldova	Themes which are considered to be of particular importance to the process of social transformation are: • Legislation and Rule of Law: drafting or amending laws, both process and content, and assistance in implementation of legislation; organisation of free legal assistance; prison reform, probation and after-care services. • Public Administration: good governance: transparency and democratisation of government actions, and democratic scrutiny; policy-making processes; decentralisation and deregulation; reform of public services. • Environment: building and strengthening environmental organisations and their networks; environmental education/advocacy. • Education: school management and educational reform; curriculum development, teaching standards and assessment, training and further training of teachers (decisive factor is the social relevance of curricula; arts and social science subjects). • Information Provision/Media: information to the public to ensure democratic society functions better; awareness-raising campaigns by NGOs. • Welfare: raising standards of professional care services for the elderly and the disabled; children at risk: street children, children and AIDS, child prostitution, juvenile delinquency, child labour.	maximum contribution per project of UAH 108,000 in Ukraine and EUR 15,000 in Moldova	Project proposals can be submitted throughout the year.
